York County Gang Prevention Initiative

The York County Gang Prevention Initiative (GPI) is a grass-roots organization that was formed in 2007 to advocate for community-based services and interventions in an effort to reduce and prevent gang activity in York County. The initiative is comprised of concerned citizens as well as representatives of area law enforcement, human services agencies and volunteer organizations. GPI works in collaboration with the Route 222 Anti-Gang Initiative and the US Attorney's Office-Eastern District.

Representative Eugene DePasquale

Rep. DePasquale represents the 95th District, and helps connect people with state government services and programs as well as other resources.

Route 222 Corridor Anti-Gang Initiative

Sponsored by the US Attorney's Office of Eastern Pennsylvania, the 222 Corridor Anti-Gang Super Six-Site grant has sparked the most comprehensive anti-gang effort in the history of this region. Since it was awarded in 2006, hundreds of public officials, community leaders and residents from Easton to York in the Eastern and Middle Districts of Pennsylvania have participated in an unprecedented collaboration in each of the three areas of focus: law enforcement, prevention, and re-entry to reduce the criminal activity and violence associated with gangs and gang membership.
